

NEBOSH HSE Award in Managing Risks and Risk Assessment at Work

The NEBOSH HSE Award in Managing Risks and Risk Assessment at Work course is an introductory level qualification designed to develop straightforward, practical health and safety risk management skills to enable learners to go beyond risk assessment and help effectively control the health and safety risks caused by hazards in the workplace.

The course is ideal for all involved in managing workplace health and safety risks, including those who undertake risk assessments. Including:

- Employers
- Managers
- Supervisors
- SHE champions
- Union health and safety representatives

Course Content

The NEBOSH HSE Award in Managing Risks and Risk Assessment at Work qualification consists of one unit which covers:

- Why manage health and safety risks
- Managing Risk: Identifying and understanding the risks
- Managing Risk: Controlling the risks
- Managing Risk: Sources of information and the application of HSE risk assessment tools

Assessment

The course is assessed by a practical assessment, completed at the end of the course. After watching a video of a real workplace, learners will complete a risk assessment to identify how they would manage and prioritise the risks present.
